Civil War Looms In Germany As Separatists And Federal Troops Clash Over Authority

Many Cities Scenes of Bloodshed; Rebels Attack Weisbaden; Area
of Republic Outlined.

TROUBLES MOUNT

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Violent fighting between loyal Germans and separatists broke out today in Aix-La-Chapelle and Muenchen-Gladbach, according to dispatches here.

Citizens loyal to the Reich attacked the forces of the newly proclaimed republic and drove many of them out of the towns, it was reported. Crowds tore down the red, white and green colors of the separatists and burned them.

Weisbaden Attacked

Mayence, Oct. 23.—200 separatist troops have attacked Weisbaden and destroyed the police, occupying all public buildings. The separatists repulsed a sharp attack of police. Several men were wounded.

Dr. Dorn, one of the chief separatists has departed for Coblenz where he is expected to proclaim a Rhine-land Republic immediately. Several villages in the Coblenz bridgehead area already have been occupied.

Area Included

Bonn, Oct. 23.—Dispatches from Bonn today forecast that the boundaries of the separatist state will include all German territory on the left bank of the Rhine and an area extending 35 miles on the right bank, beginning at the Baden frontier.

Dusseldorf, Oct. 23.—Separatists have proclaimed the Rhine-land Republic at Duisburg and have gained the upper hand in Mayence, following violent incidents, it was reported here today.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The French foreign office confirmed proclamation of a Republic in Bonn, Rhine-land, today. The municipality asked the French to intervene to restore order, protect the citizens, officials said. The local German police were put under the control of the French military, it was said. The foreign office also said French soldiers were maintaining order in Wiesbaden where the police had refused service.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Fifteen were killed and 100 wounded in Hamburg today in fighting between Communists and police, late dispatches from there said.

Communists helped by women stormed the police station and tried to get control of the city.

They were successful in places at first but were gradually being repulsed as the fighting continued.

Arrival of torpedo boats from Kiel was expected to give the police the support they needed to put down the disorder.

BEN LINDSEY MAKES ANOTHER BID FOR COVETED SPOTLIGHT

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—Judge Ben B. Lindsey will refuse to tell a Denver county grand jury what he knows of illegal operations reported in the city, he said today. District Attorney Van Cise issued a subpoena to Lindsey to appear before a grand jury at ten o'clock a. m. tomorrow to substantiate his statement—Denver's birth rate had been cut 50 per cent by such operations.

"I will not violate confidence of girls and women in my court," Lindsey said. "I feel sure the grand jury will sustain me in this action."

Lindsey reiterated his sensational declaration that the "murder" list from illegal operations on women was appalling. He said he believed it would reach more than a million annually in the United States. He will keep a list in the future of all cases coming to his attention, but will give only figures, refusing always to disclose names of those taken into his confidence.

NEW YORK TO SEE STATE AND W. VA. IN GRID CONTEST

State College, Pa., Oct. 23.—Mountaineers from Pennsylvania and West Virginia will stage a modern battle for state supremacy next Saturday when Bezek coached Penn State eleven meets the West Virginia University aggregation in the Yankee Stadium, New York City. The contest promises to be one of the best of the season.

Eastern football critics have long admired the dashing, driving offensive game that features the playing of a Penn State eleven. For sheer power on attack the Nittany Lions probably rank with the best. Moreover, the eleven coached by Hugo Bezek is a resourceful combination, usually with some tricky forward passes and other unexpected plays held in reserve.

West Virginia, coached by "Tubby" Spears, former Dartmouth line star and latter head coach at the big Green institution, is also a team of the same order. The Mountaineers, as they are called, went through the 1922 season without a defeat, and they boast of a veteran eleven this fall. But two regulars were lost and their places were easily filled with experienced substitutes. Just what sort of a combination Dr. Spears has brought together this fall is attested to by the decisive victory registered over the University of Pittsburgh and Pop Warner a week ago.

The game next Saturday will not mark the first meeting between Bezek and Spears on the gridiron. When the latter was at Dartmouth, he handed the stocky Penn State mentor a 19 to 13 defeat on the Hanover field in 1919. In 1920, Bezek had the pleasure of returning the compliment on Penn State's field, 14 to 7. As a result, the game next week on the neutral New York gridiron will be the rubber.

Lloyd George Pays Visit To Mrs. Harding; Places Wreath on Harding Tomb

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 23.—Lloyd George, wartime British Premier, came to Marion today to place a wreath on the tomb of President Harding and pay his respects to the late President's widow.

The train from Indianapolis arrived before dawn. A party of Marion citizens, all old friends of the late Warren G. Harding, met the former Premier at his early train and escorted him to the little city by auto. The party stopped first at Marion cemetery and then went to White Oak Farm, where Mrs. Harding is living with the family of Dr. C. E. Sawyer, personal physician to her late husband.

STATE POLICEMAN GETS EVIDENCE ON STEALING OF WHISKY BY FEDERAL AGENTS

Eddington, Pa., Oct. 23.—Eight United States Internal Revenue Agents detailed to re-gauge the two million dollar stock of liquor in the warehouse of the Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distillery Company were arrested late yesterday by State Police on charges of illegally transporting the intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

The Internal Revenue men were taken into custody by Corporal Sees and two troopers who are members of Governor Pinchot's "Lyons squad" of State police, as they were about to board a train for Philadelphia after their day's work in the warehouse.

Corporal Sees charges that the agents tapped whiskey barrels while they were re-gauging the stock, filled pint flasks, put the flasks into traveling bags and suit cases and carried them to the railroad station for transportation to Philadelphia.

The sensational arrests came after Corporal Sees had secreted himself in a clothes locker during the day to watch the agents while they were at work. From his hiding place the Corporal charges that he witnessed the systematic stealing of the whiskey.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Washington, Oct. 23.—The irregular payment of $64,000 in advance fees to Matthew O'Brien, California motion picture architect, by the Veterans Bureau for the preparation of plans for a Livermore hospital near San Francisco was described by General Hines, present director of the Bureau, before the Senate investigating committee today.

PINCHOT POSTPONES CONFERENCE ON THE CUTTING OF PRICES ON ANTHRACITE COAL

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—Governor Pinchot today postponed the scheduled conference with anthracite operators on ways and means of reducing coal prices until a date mutually agreeable can be arranged.

S. D. Farriner wired the Governor that he was unable to accept the invitation to meet him here with the Policy Committee of the mine owners, due to "other engagements."

It had been agreed that the conference would be resumed this week, but Pinchot said that would be impossible now as he has a number of speeches to deliver.

PUTS $1,000,000 WILL ON SCRAP OF PAPER

Doylstown, Pa., Oct. 23.—A piece of paper, four inches long by three inches wide, was valued by the late Maj. Samuel Comfort to be worth $1,000,000, to his widow and daughter.

The will written in April 1921, was filed today with the registrar here. It consists of only two sentences, naming the widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Comfort, Newton, Bucks county, Pa., and Mrs. Emma W. Comfort, London, England, his daughter, as his sole beneficiaries and executors.

Maj. Comfort for many years was connected with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. He died Oct. 11.

GRABS FOR DINNER PAIL AND FORFEITS HIS LIFE

Pottsville, Oct. 23.—Grabbing for his dinner pail, which had fallen from his hand, Andrew Pascoe, aged 17, lost his balance on a mine cage at the number 9 colliery of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Co. and fell 400 feet down the mine shaft to instant death. Pascoe was going to the surface on the cage when the can was jolted from his hand.

FORMER RESIDENTS MARRIED AT TYRONE

Philipsburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—A wedding of much interest hereabouts took place at Tyrone Saturday evening when Miss Kathryn Lukensbach, of that place, became the bride of Mr. Lloyd Tyson, of Detroit, Mich., a former Philipsburg boy. Both young people were former Philipsburgers, and both were born in this city. They are very popular in their home cities. After a western honeymoon trip they will take up their residence in Detroit, Mich. A number of Philipsburgers attended the wedding.

SURGEONS ATTEND CHICAGO CLINIC

Dr. S. J. Waterworth, Lever F. Stewart and John W. Gordon are in attendance at the five day session of the thirteenth annual clinical congress of the American college of surgeons being held at Chicago this week. During the clinic leading American and foreign surgeons will speak and clinics will be held in thirty-two hospitals and medical institutions for the benefit of nearly 3,000 American surgeons in attendance.

Some rare surgery and important discussions of medical and surgical problems are promised.

The international movement to improve hospital facilities was shown in a report by Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the college of surgeons approving 1,176 hospitals. The statistics show that one of every ten persons in the United States has been in a hospital at some time during the year.

Has Trouble

Jack Walton of Oklahoma isn't the only state executive having trouble. Gov. Walter M. Pierce of Oregon has been threatened with recall.

OPPOSITION TO THE N. Y. C. PROPOSAL IS QUITE ACTIVE

In view of past developments it is natural to expect that even greater influences than ever before will be brought to bear in opposition to the proposed trunk line extension of the New York Central, a project that would mean the construction of the link between Rose Siding and Clearfield, passing through DuBois. Some of this opposition has been detailed in previous issues. It was pointed out that a strong effort was being made to have the State Chamber of Commerce, meeting in Harrisburg, last week, adopt a resolution against the proposed extension of the New York Central. Such strong pressure was brought to bear, apparently, that the proposed resolution failed to pass. The Chamber, however, proposes serious study of the situation. The resolution committee reported out a resolution of its own, calling for study of the proposition, and the backers of the resolution to have the proposition condemned did not press their fight. It was stated, however, that they would put up a fight after the committee on study had reported its findings. Provided it was contrary to their desires.

President Johnson, of the Chamber of Commerce, stated that he would try to get together a committee of men who are neutral on the subject and if necessary would make some appointments outside of the state. When the committee has completed its investigation report will be made to the directors, who will have authority to commit the Chamber's attitude. The city of Philadelphia, is somewhat excited over the proposed trunk line extension, it being claimed that such a procedure would injure that city. Quite a heated controversy has been carried on between President A. H. Smith, of the New York Central, and S. P. Leeds, president of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce. It was Mr. Leeds who denounced the proposed consolidation at the Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The accident happened near the Meadow garage about 7:15 and the local police department was notified at once. Officers reached the scene shortly after the car collided with the post. They report they found Shown badly under the influence of liquor. He had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket and a jar of it under the car seat.

Arrested and locked up Shown was to get a hearing before Judge Thomas Hyron this afternoon.

Samuel Stewart of Bloomburg is the guest of his mother, Mrs. S. C. Stewart for a few days.

AUTO SMASH RESULTS IN SUIT

Pentz & Pentz entered suit in Prothonotary Hallston's office today on behalf of Dams Bros., of DuBois, against Lee Mahwine, of Brady township in an effort to recover $10,000 which they are asking for damages to an automobile truck owned by the plaintiffs which was wrecked, they claim, by a car driven by Mahwine.

Mrs. Minnie Schwem spent the week-end with friends in Sandy Ridge.

ONLY UNINFORMED OPPOSE LIBRARY SAY ITS FRIENDS

The general committee in charge of the library campaign, together with a goodly number of citizens, met Thursday night at the High School building and heard reports and went over the entire situation in detail.

Chairman Chas. T. K. is presiding, and the meeting was addressed by Hon. W. I. Swoope and a number of others, among whom were two of our prominent Italian citizens, Messrs. Sam Toney and Tony Martin.

Plans were made for a further distribution of information, as it was the general opinion that the only opposition discovered was among the uninformed.

Practically all the reports were optimistic but the chairman cautioned against any relaxation of effort on the part of the library's friends. The campaign is not yet over, and it is of the utmost importance that every one who wants Clearfield to have a library should see that every vote possible is made sure of, and wherever opposition is found it should be reported to the chairman, Chas. T. K., or some member of the general committee.

Intoxicated Auto Driver Badly Injures Woman Near Philipsburg

Philipsburg, Oct. 23.—Intoxicated and driving his car recklessly, James Shown, 34 years old, of Point Lookout, ran down and painfully injured Mrs. John Magwire on the highway Chester Hill Sunday evening, and came to an abrupt halt when his car collided with the "Stop, Look and Listen" signpost at the Maple street railway crossing.

The injured woman, who is about 64 years old and has long been a resident of Chester Hill, was walking to Philipsburg on the highway. She was accompanied by Mrs. Henrietta MacKenny, of Beaver street, who had spent the afternoon at the Magwire home. Because of the heavy traffic they kept well to the side of the highway and they felt they were out of danger of any passing motor vehicle.

Shown, also coming to Philipsburg, came upon the two women from the rear. Mrs. Magwire was struck by his wabbling car. She was knocked to the roadside, having been thrown a considerable distance. Shown either did not know what he had done or was too much muddled to stop, and a little further on collided with the railroad company's sign, "Stop, Look and Listen." He involuntarily occupied the first of the injunctions.

Mrs. Magwire, dazed and bleeding from cuts and bruises, was picked up and hurried to the Cottage hospital. She has painful lacerations of the face, but her condition is not regarded as serious, the hospital reported today.

The accident happened near the Meadow garage about 7:15 and the local police department was notified at once. Officers reached the scene shortly after the car collided with the post. They report they found Shown badly under the influence of liquor. He had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket and a jar of it under the car seat.

Arrested and locked up Shown was to get a hearing before Judge Thomas Hyron this afternoon.

Samuel Stewart of Bloomburg is the guest of his mother, Mrs. S. C. Stewart for a few days.

James Flanagan spent the week-end with friends in Keewaydin.

STRUCK BY FORD, LITTLE GIRL HAS HER LEG BROKEN

The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Chappie, who reside on Daisy street in west Clearfield, was struck by a Ford "bug" driven by Ralph Nelson, of East Ford.

The accident occurred Sunday evening about 8:30 o'clock on Daisy street in front of the Chappel home. The little girl ran out into the street directly in the path of the Ford. The driver of the machine tried desperately to stop, but it was too late. The car far over to the left side of the road, but the rear fender hit her and knocked her down.

She was picked up and taken to one of the Clearfield hospitals where it was found that her legs were broken and she had suffered minor bruises about the head and face. She is now recovering satisfactorily.

U. S. TO PUT A MAN ON WATCH IN ALL BREWERY PLANTS

Washington, Oct. 23.—The United States plans to put an agent in every brewery and distillery to stop leaks and to increase border patrol authority to stop smugglers.

The Treasury Department today announced this as the administration's plan to enter the dry era.

Details were made public by Secretary of the Treasury, W. M. Taft, and were said to have the approval of President Coolidge, as the latest means of co-operation with the states. It was revealed for the first time that the government is to increase the number of dry agents to inspect breweries to cope with the situation and that an additional appropriation will be asked for this purpose, as well as for the purpose of enlarging the coast and border patrol.

To Dry Up Wet States
In states where local officials are not inclined to co-operate or state laws are in conflict with federal laws, the government plans to put in a sufficient number of men to cope with the situation without local aid. It was stated New York was used as an illustration.

It was said that in a greater majority of the states the federal government experts such a full force are a local co-operation that it will be able to withdraw a large number of dry agents and concentrate their efforts where they will also be supported by the additional dry agents which Congress will be asked to authorize.

The Treasury pointed out that by the greatest source of liquor supply in the United States is in a suggestive and that when this is checked the situation will be in hand. It cannot be dealt with the "dry" force men as they are not armed and the coast guard is not able to check the sea route of liquor from American coast. Along the border it is planned to put in a sufficient number of men to guard the coast.

Best Permit System
Next to smuggling, which is the largest source of supply for the breweries and distilleries, the government believes that the best way to check the liquor traffic is to put in a permit system which can be worked out, large quantities of liquor, industrial and beer are illegally withdrawn.

The government believes that a man in each brewery is that all current manufacture of liquor is decentralized and that only legal permits for withdrawal are here.

When this system is perfected it was stated, the state and city officials will find that they will have only the hip pocket bootlegger to deal with, and he may be best handled by the local police.

Reports now are at work estimating how much money will be required to carry out the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Davis and family moved to Harrisburg on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Johnson.

ODS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. G.

The following interesting references to the early history of a section of our township, Clearfield county, when from a paper prepared by Annie McGirk of Philipsburg, read by her recently before the Woman's Chapter of the D. A. R. Miss McGirk's paper was entitled "History of Philipsburg and Vicinity," is highly interesting. The people referred to herein are all Clearfield county pioneers settlers with their descendants throughout the township.

Goss Settlement. Abraham Goss, the founder of the Goss Settlement, started to build his house on the 24th of October, 1798, in the fall of 1799 he built a house. Mr. Goss was a Revolutionary War hero; he took care of George Washington's horse and rode it many a time. His sons were David, Abraham, Isaac, George and John. He is buried in the Goss cemetery between Philipsburg and Oseola Mills. His son, David, was the father of E. Goss, of North Third street.

father of Harry Goss. He built a log house sixteen feet square, and one and one half stories high. There was no stairway inside, but a ladder outside reached the upper floor. For high as they sometimes plaited flannel, lighted one end and placed the other end in a saucer of grease. They also used pine fagots stuck in the stone fireplace. Besides these lights, they burned so many candles that Mr. Goss says his father ordered George Sealright to dip him a thousand at one time.

Besides the family of thirteen, they kept three girls all the time; one did nothing but sew and the other two did the cooking. They also kept the farm hams, all in the little house sixteen feet square. Trundle beds were used in those days. In this house was a large stone chimney. They burned hickory or oak logs, four or five feet long. If they were all going to be away over Sunday, they would heat the log red hot, then cover with ashes. It would keep hot sometimes three or four days. If it should die out they would have to go to the neighbors for a light.

When David Goss built his log house, near E. C. Bowman's mill, (now the Mock farm,) there were quite a number of Indians living there. Mr. Bowman and Edward Perks had a sawmill there. David Goss and his sons cut and hauled the timber for the mill. It was run by steam and had an "up and down" saw, the first one in this section. Much lumber was wasted by this style of saw and Mr. Bowman

Went to Church Armed

The first farm on the long road to Oseola was the Showalter farm, then Johnny Hughes' farm, Eliza Reese's father of Silas Reese, John Shaw's, Johnny Goss' and Henry Kephart's. These men built the little log school house that is still standing at the foot of the Johnny Goss hill, which is the hill beyond the Centre M. E. church. A. F. Goss says he cast his first vote in this little log school house for Abraham Lincoln. Abner Crane (now in his 85th year) and Mrs. Crane attended church in the little log school house. They had to pass through the dense forest and Mr. Crane always carried a "gun" for they were sometimes followed by wolves and panthers. In the course of time Johnny Goss sold the hill to Edward Hughes. In the deal a one hundred dollar bill was handed to Mr. Goss. He was distinctly disappointed when he saw it, for he said he thought a one hundred dollar bill ought to be as big as our Brother Jonathan. "Our Brother Jonathan" was the name of a newspaper printed in this region somewhere.

The Red Brick House

Jacob Goss, son of Abraham Goss, also raised eleven children in a log house sixteen feet square. He built the celebrated "red brick house."

Slips Reese says the clay used to make the bricks was tramped by oxen. It was one of the first brick houses built in Clearfield county. He also built a barn almost as large as Hardman Phillips' "big barn," and on top of it he had a board containing the sentence, "Success to every man that works on his own capital."

The first analysis of coal was made from a piece taken from a small drift on Eliza Reese's farm. It was sent to Switzerland by Mr. Bugshaw and it was six months before they had a reply from it.

Henry Kephart settled two and one half miles from Oseola Mills before 1803. The Columbia mine is situated on the old homestead site. He had twelve children. He was lost in 1859 near Sandy Ridge and never found. He was returning from Tyrone, had come to the tavern of John Rutledge, caught by stage, intending to walk from there to his home. He was never heard of again. His son, Henry, was ordained a minister in the U. E. church. He did home missionary work. All his sons became U. E. ministers, three of them bishops. Isaiah was a bishop, also president of Otterbein University, and editor of Otterbein Gazette, and the Religious Telegrapher. Ezekiel, bishop and missionary to Africa, and Cyrus, bishop in eastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph My were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rolley at Philipsburg on Monday.

NITTANY AUTO CRASH CLAIMS TWO VICTIMS

Pete Zarembo, owner and driver of the Maxwell automobile which crashed into a tree a mile and a half above Nittany Sunday afternoon, Oct. 21, died at the Lock Haven hospital Saturday, as the result of his injuries. Deceased was 41 years old and leaves a wife and three children, who live at Yeagertown.

This is the second death as the result of the accident, one man, later identified as John Julewah, of Yeagertown, being killed outright. Zarembo had sustained lacerations of the scalp and internal injuries, his lung being punctured by a broken rib. Little hope had been entertained for his recovery at any time.

Alfred Verbeck of Clearfield spent Sunday with his parents at Bolling Stone.

TEN BEST BUSINESS WOMEN IN U. S. AS GOOD IN INDUSTRY AS MEN, SAYS EXPERT

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN
NEA Service Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, October 23.—Who are the country's ten greatest business women?

Two insurance agents, a manufacturer of railroad ties, a maker of paints, a welder, a chemist, a builder of tug boats, the head of an iron foundry, an industrial geologist, and a manufacturer of shoes!

All are comparatively unknown. Yet, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Sears, former editor of the Independent Woman and a leader for many years in women's activities, these are the women who rank with the Fords, Schwabs, Rockefellers and Armours of industry!

The list of ten male leaders of industry selected by C. R. Flint, "Father of Trusts," and published recently in The Progress, was taken to Mrs. Sears, now head of the New York League of Professional and Business Women, for a "sister" ranking.

"It is difficult to limit the list to ten," she said, "for there are some 4,000 women whose success has put them in the front ranks of the business world."

"But foremost of these, I believe, is Mrs. Lena Lake Forrest of Detroit. She probably has done more for blazing the way of women into the business world than any other woman. A wizard at her own work, insurance, she matches up well with any of the men in the same calling."

"Closely associated with her is Miss Georgia Emery, head of the women's department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. Formerly a school teacher, she was forced into business by circumstances. And she made a go of it. Now she is busy helping others do as much. 'Any failure can sell insurance,' is her idea, and she is putting it over big. She and Mrs. Forrest both have made the exclusive $500,000 Club, bringing in at least that much business every year."

"Third place goes to Miss Ann Baker of Paducah, Ky. She followed in the footsteps of her dad who manufactured ties, rafters and trimmings for steamboats. One day there was a strike. The men were unable to cope with it. Miss Baker stepped into the breach, won the issue, and succeeded where others had failed. She is now one of the active heads of the Lord & Ayer Tie Company."

"Another woman who won success in the business world by proving that her word was as good as her bond is Miss Mary Ryan of Brooklyn. With a capital of $1,500 she started a business that last year exceeded $100,000. She is now president of the Ryan Paint & Supply Company, and is believed to have been the inspiration of the play called 'The Clingtag Vine,' which had for its heroine a young woman running a paint establishment."

"None of these women are 'letter head' women. They are women who do not seek the spotlight, and their names are little known outside their own circles."

"Some of them share their success with their husbands. Mrs. Zella A. McBerty is such. A trained machinist, she has worked with her husband in the Federal Spot Welder Company of Warren, Ohio, and developed it so that it now is doing more than a million-dollar business a year!

"Sixth in this list is Mrs. Mary Stubbs Moore, president and manager of the Pitman Chemical Company of Indianapolis, Indiana. Quiet in manner, but thorough in work, she developed a field that was exclusively worked by men."

"Down in Jacksonville, Florida, Mrs. N. B. Brainard has been building tug boats for many years. Her boats have become known as the best in the southern waters. Many of her customers say she is a better 'business man' than most men."

"It seems that no work is too hard for a woman to tackle. For Miss Cecile Woodbury is president of an iron foundry in Great Falls, Montana. Despite the handicap imposed upon a woman going into so arduous a work, she succeeded in developing the company so that now it is one of the leading in its field."

"Ninth in the ranking of these business successes is Mrs. Charles N. Gould of Oklahoma City. Her husband was a professor of geology, who could not see much to his calling beyond the academic side. His wife did. She persuaded him to branch out. Together they did, and now their company of industrial geology is kept busy making surveys, reports and money. They have two children, but do not let business interfere with bringing them up."

"Tenth place goes to Miss Alice Engelhardt of Cincinnati, who rose from a $4.00-a-week job as stock girl to be secretary and treasurer of the Pitter Shoe Company."

"If we were listing just another name to the ranking, I would add Mrs. Stella Coleman, of Indianapolis. Left a widow with two children, she went to work for a bank, and soon developed an industrial department that has been an influence on banking throughout the country."

"All these women are pioneers and leaders in the business world, opening up new vistas for women. They are all leaders in their chosen lines, and they succeeded because they were ready to take a chance."

"All of them are middle-aged, between 35 and 45. Their work seems to keep them young."

SWALLOWED UP

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Loring Ranger offers a reward of one hundred thousand dollars for the return of his missing daughter, Hope. Acting upon instructions from Hope's abductors, Ranger deposits a hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds at a specified place. Dr. Bristol has a private sanitarium and it is here that Hope is held. Dr. Kelsey is detained here because he knows of criminal dealings of Bristol.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Bristol knows there is a hiding place in the house. I am going to give myself up. Reach my father. Love forever Hope."

Without giving her impulse time to cool, she hurried back to the cupboard and crept into the passage, closing the panel carefully behind her. Kelsey still lay in deep, exhausted sleep. She bent over him, her lips near his; then drew back, fearing to wake him. Very gently she slipped the note between his relaxed fingers, and then felt her way along the wall until she reached the other exit.

Outside at last, and no sign that she had attracted any attention. Shielded by two or three out-buildings, and concealed by patches of shrubbery, she reached the gap in the hedge. Passing through it, she made a quick detour to the right to muddy her skirt and shoes in the trickle of a brook, and so at last came to the open space where the wrecked automobile lay.

She heard the men approaching who had been whistled back from the woods and began dodging from tree to tree as if attempting to hide. They saw her as she had intended they should. Two of them caught her. She made a show of struggle, but they held her fast by the arms. In answer to their shouts, Bristol and the others came running through the hedge.

"Ah!" he said with uncouth satisfaction as if a weight had been suddenly removed from his chest. "How to get the other one?" His eyes were like points of steel as he came close to Hope.

"Where's Kelsey?" he demanded. She looked at him vacantly.

"Kelsey," he repeated, "the man you went away with. Where is he?" "That man?" He was under the automobile; there was blood on him.

"Yes, yes. But what became of him?" She leaned toward him with the air of imparting a confidence.

"That man is crazy. He said he wasn't, but I know better. I wanted him to hide in the woods. I know these woods." She passed her hand nervously over her forehead.

"I don't know how I know them, but I wanted him to hide here, but he wouldn't do it. He talked about getting a boat down on the beach, and when I wouldn't go with him he ran away." She waved her hand vaguely toward the shore.

Bristol's eyes bored through her, but she looked beyond him listlessly.

Finally he gave a curt order to have her taken back to the house.

CHAPTER XXI

KELSEY woke up slowly, dragging himself from his long, exhausted sleep and blinked his heavy eyes.

Why, it was daylight!

His whole sleep-togged brain was roused now. Why was the panel open? Ah! There Hope stood in it—no! It was a man.

Then he sprang. The man in the opening ducked, and raised an arm to shield himself. "I'm a friend!" he cried, throwing himself against the side of the cupboard. "Honest, you can believe me. A friend of Ranger's."

Kelsey looked above him, still threatening, but his lowering glance had shifted. What was this he was holding in his clenched hand—that bit of white paper sticking through his fingers, between the spreading knuckles?

Juanes Charlie had dodged; and quick as a cat on his feet, stepped from the cupboard into the room. Kelsey had unclosed his hand, and was straightening out the paper.

He could see that there was something written on it, but the light was too dim and gray for him to decipher it. He was in the room and at the window in two strides.

Here he read Hope's message. The rain was dashing against the window panes.

Two of them caught her.

down paces, the wind whailing about the house.

The uprushing blood darkened his face. He whirled savagely, and caught Charlie by the shoulder shaking him hard.

"Who are you? One of their men? Did you help take her?"

"I did not," Charlie wriggled like an eel from that biting grasp and stood rubbing his shoulder. "I'm one of Ranger's men, Juanes Charlie. Do you get that?"

He swaggered, his head at its most impudent angle.

"I've been wandering about with one of a picture-puzzle, trying to piece the rest out of the air. And you've got the other two-thirds. They know that I'm on their trail, and that I've been in Barcelona. They think you're drowned."

"Drowned? Me?" Kelsey repeated. "In heaven's name, why?"

"She told them you'd made for the shore, and a boat. Then, that terrible storm. Lord! Did you sleep through that?"

"I seem to have slept through everything, but my own special judgment, I'm going through that now."

"But still," Charlie continued, "there's always the chance of your being alive and at large. So, everything considered, they've got a new situation before them, something they haven't foreseen."

"But my God; if you're what you say you are, one of Ranger's men, all you have to do is to go out now and telephone him and the authorities."

"Oh, is it?" Charlie retorted with acid sarcasm. "This thing isn't quite as simple as it sounds. You start out to telephone, and you'll be nabbed sure."

Half-convinced, Kelsey gave way ungraciously.

"What sort of a place is this sanitarium?" The brusque tang of the question gave Kelsey the feeling that Charlie was really heading somewhere, and aroused him from his melancholy abstraction.

"Bristol's?" He looked up. "One of the best in the country. Only for the very rich of course; thoroughly modern, splendidly managed. Bristol is an alienist of the first rank, with a criminal twist and a crane for money."

"What were you doing there?" Kelsey told him briefly of his position as assistant-surgeon, and the circumstances of his detention; just his first experience with Hope and of the role she was playing; of their subsequent meetings and the escape.

Charlie's cigar burned to ashes in his fingers, and his face sharpened down until it was wolfish; but he did not once interrupt the story, or ask a question.

"Bristol?" He held up one of his lightning-rolled cigarettes, naming it. "But," he quipped thoughtfully, as he laid it on the table, "he couldn't swing it along. Too big. Who else is in it?"

He shot the question at Kelsey like a bullet from a rapid-fire revolver.

"Miss Copley. She's a nurse. Looks strikingly like Hope. Passes as an older sister in charge of the insane young ones."

Charlie pursed his mouth to a whistle.

"Any one else?" "Higgins. An ex-Alderman. An old millionaire. Made a fortune in Wall Street, they say."

Charlie blundered up with a stifled exclamation, his tongue clicking his teeth.

"Hobbs! But that does settle it. Hobbs! I might have known it. Hobbs—The Joker in the deck!"

He bobbed about the room like cork, snapping his fingers, muttering broken phrases under his breath.

"The hobo message!—This booby-hatch for a head-quarters!—The nurse, a ringer!—I've got the whole thing!"

CHAPTER XXII

"IN the first place," said Charlie, "I've known Ranger ever since I was a boy, and when I heard about his little girl, I started out on my own to find her. I know crook psychology better than old Byrnes ever did; but this gang that are holding her fooled me forty ways from the are. But last night I got a tip that led straight to Bristol's Sanitarium."

"I rode as fast as my motor-cycle could race from Westchester to Barcelona, taking all the short cuts. It was on one of them that I came on you two. And so I rushed for a doctor, thinking you were ready to kick me, and as soon as I reached the village, I got pinched. So I just turned in and went to sleep; that is, as much as that fierce storm would let me."

"But in the meantime, my mascot had got busy. She it was that mistle led to Bristol. I'd had dinner with her, and put her back in a bus with her party. They all went on to spend the evening with some friends, and as they came back about midnight, they stopped at the Low Hill garage for some gas. Up steps the garage man's assistant, a shock-headed lunk, that had driven me and my queen to the Inn. He was all twittering with excitement, and tells her that I've been arrested over here at Barcelona."

"What a headpiece that girl's got. Here's her friends kind of giggling at her for being took in. But don't believe that; for she saw me with Ranger. And Barcelona is the tip she gave me. But she wants to make sure. So what does she do but call up the man whose name's been in all the papers as Ranger's attorney, Eustace Higby."

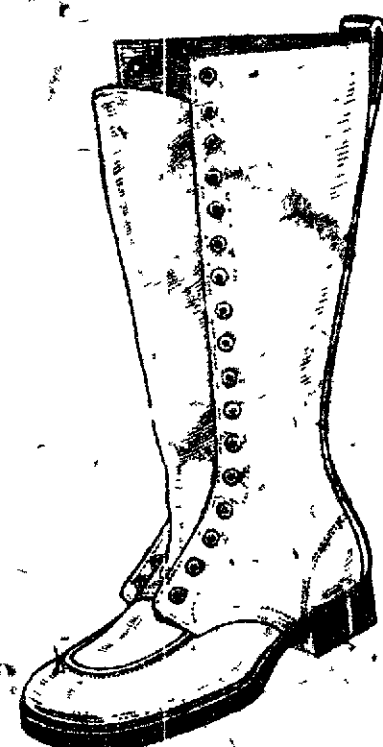

"He tells her that I'm all right, and then he routs out Frank Bryan, Ranger's private secretary, and shows him down here on the morning train to get me out."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

"The new 'Lake-to-Sea' highway coming into the William Penn at Tyndale, is going to be the main traveled road between Cleveland, Chicago and the entire Northwest to Washington and Baltimore, for already the sensible motorists are avoiding the passage thru the crooked, congested streets of Pittsburgh and seeking the clear air and roadways of this new and beautiful concrete avenue over the foothills of the Alleghenies."

One day an old Kurdish chief, with a heavily armed escort, rode into the grounds of the British legation in Teheran, Persia. He had a little grandson with him, "a richly dressed boy of about nine who, in addition to a dagger and sword, had a couple of the most up-to-date revolvers stuck in his belt." The old chief wanted to send his grandson to Harrow school in England. The matter was discussed through an interpreter, "and after countless complaints and expressions of thanks, the w23-looking horsemen with the old chief and the boy at his head, rode away."

TRINITY CHURCH ITEMS
Sunday was crowded with notable gatherings and events. Bible school had a fine swing and interest in the lesson study. Dr. Titus Lowe, one of the corresponding secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions, at the New York office, spent the morning and afternoon with Trinity congregations and Clearfield sector Methodists. He was introduced to the school, making a fine impression by his strong remarks.

At the morning worship, in which many strangers were welcomed, Dr. Lowe delivered a very informing and affecting discourse, with captivating power. He outlined the work of the church in various lands, giving the facts from his personal study on this ground.

In the afternoon a division gathering assembled at 2:30. District Superintendent E. A. Pyles, of Williamsport, was in charge. A stirring song service opened the service. Following prayer by Rev. W. L. Armstrong, Dr. Lowe gave a wonderful address on the new currents of life, thought and purpose in the world. He gave a study of conditions that was worthy a statesman—a review of events in the great nations, that are not treated in the newspapers, but are, in the last analysis, the constructive forces in the progress of the race. The incidents given from Malaysia, Korea, Manchuria, India and other nations were never-to-be-forgotten recitals of capital experiences and happenings, revealing a new spirit, and a leadership conquering because native. Representatives of the lay membership of the churches throughout this section were in the assembly. Dr. J. C. Collins, Curwensville; D. M. Kerr, Lumberville; M. J. Runyan, Wallacetown; C. K. Gibson, Eleventh street, and N. B. Smith were present.

At night the minister gave an exposition of John 14:7-9, discussing Christianity in conflict with Agnosticism, or the declared impossibility of knowing

"LOOK BABY," SAYS BABY WITH GUN; PARENT SHOT

Lykens, Pa., Oct. 22.—"Look Daddy!" said the three-year-old son of Joseph Umholtz of Gratz, while Umholtz, his wife and the little boy were in a clothing store here this evening.

Umholtz looked, and saw the child holding a shiny revolver which had attracted the little fellow's attention when the toddler behind the counter found the gun beside the cash register. As the frightened father lurched forward to snatch the weapon from the boy's hands the child pulled the trigger. The bullet left a slight flesh wound on the father's head.

Civil War Looms In Germany As Separatists And Federal Troops Clash Over Authority

Many Cities Scenes of Bloodshed; Rebels Attack Weisbaden; Area
of Republic Outlined.

TROUBLES MOUNT

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Violent fighting between loyal Germans and separatists broke out today in Aix-La-Chapelle and Muenchen-Gladbach, according to dispatches here.

Citizens loyal to the Reich attacked the forces of the newly proclaimed republic and drove many of them out of the towns, it was reported. Crowds tore down the red, white and green colors of the separatists and burned them.

Weisbaden Attacked

Mayence, Oct. 23.—200 separatist troops have attacked Weisbaden and disarmed the police, occupying all public buildings. The separatists repulsed a sharp attack of police. Several men were wounded.

Dr. Dorn, one of the chief separatists has departed for Coblenz where he is expected to proclaim a Rhine-land Republic immediately. Several villages in the Coblenz bridgehead area already have been occupied.

Area Included

Bonn, Oct. 23.—Dispatches from Bonn today forecast that the boundaries of the separatist state will include all German territory on the left bank of the Rhine and an area extending 35 miles on the right bank, beginning at the Baden frontier.

Dusseldorf, Oct. 23.—Separatists have proclaimed the Rhine-land Republic at Duisburg and have gained the upper hand in Mayence, following violent incidents, it was reported here today.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The French foreign office confirmed proclamation of a Republic in Bonn, Rhine-land, today. The municipality asked the French to intervene to restore order, protect the citizens, officials said. The local German police were put under the control of the French military, it was said. The foreign office also said French soldiers were maintaining order in Wiesbaden where the police had refused service.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Fifteen were killed and 100 wounded in Hamburg today in fighting between Communists and police, late dispatches from there said.

Communists helped by women stormed the police station and tried to get control of the city.

They were successful in places at first but were gradually being repulsed as the fighting continued.

Arrival of torpedo boats from Kiel was expected to give the police the support they needed to put down the disorder.

BEN LINDSEY MAKES ANOTHER BID FOR COVETED SPOTLIGHT

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—Judge Ben B. Lindsey will refuse to tell a Denver county grand jury what he knows of illegal operations reported in the city, he said today. District Attorney Van Cise issued a subpoena to Lindsey to appear before a grand jury at ten o'clock a. m. tomorrow to substantiate his statement—Denver's birth rate had been cut 50 per cent by such operations.

"I will not violate confidence of girls and women in my court," Lindsey said. "I feel sure the grand jury will sustain me in this action."

Lindsey reiterated his sensational declaration that the "murder" list from illegal operations on women was appalling. He said he believed it would reach more than a million annually in the United States. He will keep a list in the future of all cases coming to his attention, but will give only figures, refusing always to disclose names of those taken into his confidence.

NEW YORK TO SEE STATE AND W. VA. IN GRID CONTEST

State College, Pa., Oct. 23.—Mountaineers from Pennsylvania and West Virginia will stage a modern battle for state supremacy next Saturday when Bezdek coached Penn State eleven meets the West Virginia University aggregation in the Yankee Stadium, New York City. The contest promises to be one of the best of the season.

Eastern football critics have long admired the dashing, driving offensive game that features the playing of a Penn State eleven. For sheer power on attack the Nittany Lions probably rank with the best. Moreover, the eleven coached by Hugo Bezdek is a resourceful combination, usually with some tricky forward passes and other unexpected plays held in reserve.

West Virginia, coached by "Tubby" Spears, former Dartmouth line star and latter head coach at the big Green institution, is also a team of the same order. The Mountaineers, as they are called, went through the 1922 season without a defeat, and they boast of a veteran eleven this fall. But two regulars were lost and their places were easily filled with experienced substitutes. Just what sort of a combination Dr. Spears has brought together this fall is attested to by the decisive victory registered over the University of Pittsburgh and Pop Warner a week ago.

The game next Saturday will not mark the first meeting between Bezdek and Spears on the gridiron. When the latter was at Dartmouth, he handed the stocky Penn State mentor a 19 to 13 defeat on the Hanover field in 1919. In 1920, Bezdek had the pleasure of returning the compliment on Penn State's field, 14 to 7. As a result, the game next week on the neutral New York gridiron will be the rubber.

Lloyd George Pays Visit To Mrs. Harding; Places Wreath on Harding Tomb

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 23.—Lloyd George, wartime British Premier, came to Marion today to place a wreath on the tomb of President Harding and pay his respects to the late President's widow.

The train from Indianapolis arrived before dawn. A party of Marion citizens, all old friends of the late Warren G. Harding, met the former Premier at his early train and escorted him to the little city by auto. The party stopped first at Marion cemetery and then went to White Oak Farm, where Mrs. Harding is living with the family of Dr. C. E. Sawyer, personal physician to her late husband.

STATE POLICEMAN GETS EVIDENCE ON STEALING OF WHISKY BY FEDERAL AGENTS

Eddington, Pa., Oct. 23.—Eight United States Internal Revenue Agents detailed to re-gauge the two million dollar stock of liquor in the warehouse of the Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distillery Company were arrested late yesterday by State Police on charges of illegally transporting the intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

The Internal Revenue men were taken into custody by Corporal Sees and two troopers who are members of Governor Pinchot's "Lyons squad" of State police, as they were about to board a train for Philadelphia after their day's work in the warehouse.

Corporal Sees charges that the agents tapped whiskey barrels while they were re-gauging the stock, filled pint flasks, put the flasks into traveling bags and suit cases and carried them to the railroad station for transportation to Philadelphia.

The sensational arrests came after Corporal Sees had secreted himself in a clothes locker during the day to watch the agents while they were at work. From his hiding place the Corporal charges that he witnessed the systematic stealing of the whiskey.

PINCHOT POSTPONES CONFERENCE ON THE CUTTING OF PRICES ON ANTHRACITE COAL

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—Governor Pinchot today postponed the scheduled conference with anthracite operators on ways and means of reducing coal prices until a date mutually agreeable can be arranged.

S. D. Farriner wired the Governor that he was unable to accept the invitation to meet him here with the Policy Committee of the mine owners, due to "other engagements."

It had been agreed that the conference would be resumed this week, but Pinchot said that would be impossible now as he has a number of speeches to deliver.

FORMER RESIDENTS MARRIED AT TYRONE

Philipsburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—A wedding of much interest hereabouts took place at Tyrone Saturday evening when Miss Kathryn Lukensbach, of that place, became the bride of Mr. Lloyd Tyson, of Detroit, Mich., a former Philipsburg boy. Both young people were former Philipsburgers, and both were born in this city. They are very popular in their home cities. After a western honeymoon trip they will take up their residence in Detroit, Mich. A number of Philipsburgers attended the wedding.

SURGEONS ATTEND CHICAGO CLINIC

Dr. S. J. Waterworth, Lever F. Stewart and John W. Gordon are in attendance at the five day session of the thirteenth annual clinical congress of the American college of surgeons being held at Chicago this week. During the clinic leading American and foreign surgeons will speak and clinics will be held in thirty-two hospitals and medical institutions for the benefit of nearly 3,000 American surgeons in attendance.

Some rare surgery and important discussions of medical and surgical problems are promised.

The international movement to improve hospital facilities was shown in a report by Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the college of surgeons approving 1,176 hospitals. The statistics show that one of every ten persons in the United States has been in a hospital at some time during the year.

Has Trouble

Jack Walton of Oklahoma isn't the only state executive having trouble. Gov. Walter M. Pierce of Oregon has been threatened with recall.

OPPOSITION TO THE N. Y. C. PROPOSAL IS QUITE ACTIVE

In view of past developments it is natural to expect that even greater influences than ever before will be brought to bear in opposition to the proposed trunk line extension of the New York Central, a project that would mean the construction of the link between Rose Sidling and Clearfield, passing through DuBois. Some of this opposition has been detailed in previous issues. It was pointed out that a strong effort was being made to have the State Chamber of Commerce, meeting in Harrisburg, last week, adopt a resolution against the proposed extension of the New York Central. Such strong pressure was brought to bear, apparently, that the proposed resolution failed to pass.

The Chamber, however, proposes serious study of the situation. The resolution committee reported out a resolution of its own, calling for study of the proposition, and the backers of the resolution to have the proposition condemned did not press their fight. It was stated, however, that they would put up a fight after the committee on study had reported its findings. Provided it was contrary to their desires.

President Johnson, of the Chamber of Commerce, stated that he would try to get together a committee of men who are neutral on the subject and if necessary would make some appointments outside of the state. When the committee has completed its investigation report will be made to the directors, who will have authority to commit the Chamber's attitude.

The city of Philadelphia, is somewhat excited over the proposed trunk line extension, it being claimed that such a procedure would injure that city. Quite a heated controversy has been carried on between President A. H. Smith, of the New York Central, and S. P. Leeds, president of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce. It was Mr. Leeds who denounced the proposed consolidation at the Chamber of Commerce meeting.

AUTO SMASH RESULTS IN SUIT

Pentz & Pentz entered suit in Prothonotary Hall's office today on behalf of Damas Bros., of DuBois, against Lee Mahrtine, of Brady township in an effort to recover $10,000 which they are asking for damages to an automobile truck owned by the plaintiffs which was wrecked, they claim, by a car driven by Mahrtine.

Mrs. Minnie Schwen spent the week-end with friends in Sandy Ridge.

ONLY UNINFORMED OPPOSE LIBRARY SAY ITS FRIENDS

The general committee in charge of the library campaign, together with a goodly number of citizens, met Thursday night at the High School building and heard reports and went over the entire situation in detail.

Chairman Chas. T. K. is presiding, and the meeting was addressed by Hon. W. I. Swoope and a number of others, among whom were two of our prominent Italian citizens, Messrs. Sam Toney and Tony Martin.

Plans were made for a further distribution of information, as it was the general opinion that the only opposition discovered was among the uninformed.

Practically all the reports were optimistic but the chairman cautioned against any relaxation of effort on the part of the library's friends. The campaign is not yet over, and it is of the utmost importance that every one who wants Clearfield to have a library should see that every vote possible is made sure of, and wherever opposition is found it should be reported to the chairman, Chas. T. K., or some member of the general committee.

Intoxicated Auto Driver Badly Injures Woman Near Philipsburg

Philipsburg, Oct. 23.—Intoxicated and driving his car recklessly, James Showden, 34 years old, of Point Lookout, ran down and painfully injured Mrs. John Maguire on the highway Chester Hill Sunday evening, and came to an abrupt halt when his car collided with the "Stop, Look and Listen" signpost at the Maple street railway crossing.

The injured woman, who is about 64 years old and has long been a resident of Chester Hill, was walking to Philipsburg on the highway. She was accompanied by Mrs. Henrietta MacKenny, of Beaver street, who had spent the afternoon at the Maguire home. Because of the heavy traffic they kept well to the side of the highway and they felt they were out of danger of any passing motor vehicle.

Showden, also coming to Philipsburg, came upon the two women from the rear. Mrs. Maguire was struck by his wabbling car. She was knocked to the roadside, having been thrown a considerable distance. Showden either did not know what he had done or was too much muddled to stop, and a little further on collided with the railroad company's sign, "Stop, Look and Listen." He involuntarily occupied the first of the injunctions.

Mrs. Maguire, dazed and bleeding from cuts and bruises, was picked up and hurried to the Cottage hospital. She has painful lacerations of the face, but her condition is not regarded as serious, the hospital reported today.

The accident happened near the Meadow garage about 7:15 and the local police department was notified at once. Officers reached the scene shortly after the car collided with the signpost. They report they found Showden badly under the influence of liquor. He had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket and a jar of it under the car seat.

Arrested and locked up Showden was to get a hearing before Judge Thomas Hyron this afternoon.

Samuel Stewart of Bloomburg is the guest of his mother, Mrs. S. C. Stewart for a few days.

James Flanagan spent the week-end with friends in Keewaydin.

STRUCK BY FORD, LITTLE GIRL HAS HER LEG BROKEN

The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Chappie, who reside on Daisy street in west Clearfield, was struck by a Ford "bug" driven by Ralph Nelson, of East Ford. The accident occurred Sunday evening about 8:30 o'clock on Daisy street in front of the Chappel home. The little girl ran out into the street directly in the path of the Ford. The driver of the machine tried desperately to stop it striking her, however, she was far over to the left side of the road, but the rear fender hit her and knocked her down.

She was picked up and taken to one of the Clearfield hospitals where it was found that her legs were broken and she had suffered minor bruises about the head and face. She is now recovering satisfactorily.

U. S. TO PUT A MAN ON WATCH IN ALL BREWERY PLANTS

Washington, Oct. 23.—The United States plans to put an agent in every brewery and distillery to stop leaks and to increase border patrol authority to stop smugglers.

The Treasury Department today announced this as the administration's plan to enter the dry era.

Details were made public by Secretary of the Treasury, W. M. Taft, and were said to have the approval of President Coolidge as the latest means of co-operation with the states.

It was revealed for the first time that the government is to increase the number of dry agents to inspect breweries to cope with the situation and that an additional appropriation will be asked for this purpose, as well as for the purpose of enlarging the coast and border patrol.

To Dry Up Wet States
In states where local officials are not inclined to co-operate or state laws are in conflict with federal laws, the government plans to put in a sufficient number of men to cope with the situation without local aid. It was stated New York was used as an illustration.

It was said that in a greater majority of the states the federal government experts such a full force are a local requirement that it will be able to withdraw a large number of dry agents and concentrate their forces. This force will also be augmented by the additional dry agents which Congress will be asked to authorize.

The Treasury pointed out that by the greatest source of liquor supply in the United States is in a suggestive and that when this is checked the situation will be in hand. It cannot be dealt with the "dry" force men as they are not armed and the coast guard is not left to check the sea coast. A new American coast guard is being planned to guard the coast and to guard the customs guard of the same port.

Best Permit System
Must to suppress the sale of the largest source of supply in the breweries and distilleries is to put a permit system which can be worked out, large quantities of liquor, industrial and beer are illegally withdrawn.

The permit system is a plan in which every man who has an interest in the manufacture of liquor is to be licensed and that only legal permits for withdrawal are to be used.

When this system is perfected it was stated, the state and city officials will find that they will have only the top pocket but never the bottom pocket and he may be best handled by the local police.

Reports now are at work estimating how much money will be required to carry out the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Davis and family moved to Harrisburg on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Johnson.

ODS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. G.

The following interesting reference to the early history of a section of our township, Clearfield county, when from a paper prepared by Annie McGirk of Philipsburg, read by her recently before the Woman's Chapter of the D. A. R. Mission Chapter of Philipsburg and vicinity, is highly interesting. The people referred to herein are all Clearfield county pioneers settlers with descendants throughout the county.

Goss Settlement. Abraham Goss, the founder of the Goss Settlement, started to build his house on the 24th of October, 1798, in the fall of 1799 he built a house. Mr. Goss was a Revolutionary War hero; he took care of George Washington's horse and rode it many a time. His sons were David, Abraham, Isaac, George and John. He is buried in the Goss cemetery between Philipsburg and Oseola Mills. His son, David, was the father of E. Goss, of North Third street.

father of Harry Goss. He built a log house sixteen feet square, and one and one half stories high. There was no stairway inside, but a ladder outside reached the upper floor. For high as they sometimes plaited flannel, lighted one end and placed the other end in a saucer of grease. They also used pine fagots stuck in the stone fireplace. Besides these lights, they burned so many candles that Mr. Goss says his father ordered George Sealright to dip him a thousand at one time.

Besides the family of thirteen, they kept three girls all the time; one did nothing but sew and the other two did the cooking. They also kept the farm hams, all in the little house sixteen feet square. Trundle beds were used in those days. In this house was a large stone chimney. They burned hickory or oak logs, four or five feet long. If they were all going to be away over Sunday, they would heat the log red hot, then cover with ashes. It would keep hot sometimes three or four days. If it should die out they would have to go to the neighbors for a light.

When David Goss built his log house, near E. C. Bowman's mill, (now the Mock farm,) there were quite a number of Indians living there. Mr. Bowman and Edward Perks had a sawmill there. David Goss and his sons cut and hauled the timber for the mill. It was run by steam and had an "up and down" saw, the first one in this section. Much lumber was wasted by this style of saw and Mr. Bowman

Went to Church Armed

The first farm on the long road to Oseola was the Showalter farm, then Johnny Hughes' farm, Eliza Reese's father of Silas Reese, John Shaw's, Johnny Goss' and Henry Kephart's. These men built the little log school house that is still standing at the foot of the Johnny Goss hill, which is the hill beyond the Centre M. E. church. A. F. Goss says he cast his first vote in this little log school house for Abraham Lincoln. Abner Crane (now in his 85th year) and Mrs. Crane attended church in the little log school house. They had to pass through the dense forest and Mr. Crane always carried a "gun" for they were sometimes followed by wolves and panthers. In the course of time Johnny Goss sold the hill to Edward Hughes. In the deal a one hundred dollar bill was handed to Mr. Goss. He was distinctly disappointed when he saw it, for he said he thought a one hundred dollar bill ought to be as big as our Brother Jonathan. "Our Brother Jonathan" was the name of a newspaper printed in this region somewhere.

The Red Brick House

Jacob Goss, son of Abraham Goss, also raised eleven children in a log house sixteen feet square. He built the celebrated "red brick house."

Slips Reese says the clay used to make the bricks was tramped by oxen. It was one of the first brick houses built in Clearfield county. He also built a barn almost as large as Hardman Phillips' "big barn," and on top of it he had a board containing the sentence, "Success to every man that works on his own capital."

The first analysis of coal was made from a piece taken from a small drift on Eliza Reese's farm. It was sent to Switzerland by Mr. Bugshaw and it was six months before they had a reply from it.

Henry Kephart settled two and one half miles from Oseola Mills before 1803. The Columbia mine is situated on the old homestead site. He had twelve children. He was lost in 1859 near Sandy Ridge and never found. He was returning from Tyrone, had come to the tavern of John Rutledge, caught by stage, intending to walk from there to his home. He was never heard of again. His son, Henry, was ordained a minister in the U. E. church. He did home missionary work. All his sons became U. E. ministers, three of them bishops. Isaiah was a bishop, also president of Otterbein University, and editor of Otterbein Gazette, and the Religious Telegrapher. Ezekiel, bishop and missionary to Africa, and Cyrus, bishop in eastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph My were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rolley at Philipsburg on Monday.

NITTANY AUTO CRASH CLAIMS TWO VICTIMS

Pete Zarembo, owner and driver of the Maxwell automobile which crashed into a tree a mile and a half above Nittany Sunday afternoon, Oct. 21, died at the Lock Haven hospital Saturday, as the result of his injuries. Deceased was 41 years old and leaves a wife and three children, who live at Yeagertown.

This is the second death as the result of the accident, one man, later identified as John Julewah, of Yeagertown, being killed outright. Zarembo had sustained lacerations of the scalp and internal injuries, his lung being punctured by a broken rib. Little hope had been entertained for his recovery at any time.

Alfred Verbeck of Clearfield spent Sunday with his parents at Rolling Stone.

TEN BEST BUSINESS WOMEN IN U. S. AS GOOD IN INDUSTRY AS MEN, SAYS EXPERT

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN
NEA Service Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, October 23.—Who are the country's ten greatest business women?

Two insurance agents, a manufacturer of railroad ties, a maker of paints, a welder, a chemist, a builder of tug boats, the head of an iron foundry, an industrial geologist, and a manufacturer of shoes!

All are comparatively unknown. Yet, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Sears, former editor of the Independent Woman and a leader for many years in women's activities, these are the women who rank with the Fords, Schwabs, Rockefellers and Armours of industry!

The list of ten male leaders of industry selected by C. R. Flint, "Father of Trusts," and published recently in The Progress, was taken to Mrs. Sears, now head of the New York League of Professional and Business Women, for a "sister" ranking.

"It is difficult to limit the list to ten," she said, "for there are some 4,000 women whose success has put them in the front ranks of the business world."

"But foremost of these, I believe, is Mrs. Lena Lake Forrest of Detroit. She probably has done more for blazing the way of women into the business world than any other woman. A wizard at her own work, insurance, she matches up well with any of the men in the same calling."

"Closely associated with her is Miss Georgia Emery, head of the women's department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. Formerly a school teacher, she was forced into business by circumstances. And she made a go of it. Now she is busy helping others do as much. 'Any failure can sell insurance,' is her idea, and she is putting it over big. She and Mrs. Forrest both have made the exclusive $500,000 Club, bringing in at least that much business every year."

"Third place goes to Miss Ann Baker of Paducah, Ky. She followed in the footsteps of her dad who manufactured ties, rafters and trimmings for steamboats. One day there was a strike. The men were unable to cope with it. Miss Baker stepped into the breach, won the issue, and succeeded where others had failed. She is now one of the active heads of the Lord & Ayer Tie Company."

"Another woman who won success in the business world by proving that her word was as good as her bond is Miss Mary Ryan of Brooklyn. With a capital of $1,500 she started a business that last year exceeded $100,000. She is now president of the Ryan Paint & Supply Company, and is believed to have been the inspiration of the play called 'The Clingtag Vine,' which had for its heroine a young woman running a paint establishment."

"None of these women are 'letter head' women. They are women who do not seek the spotlight, and their names are little known outside their own circles."

"Some of them share their success with their husbands. Mrs. Zella A. McBerty is such. A trained machinist, she has

Ten Greatest Business Women

1. MRS. LENA LAKE FORREST, insurance, Detroit, Mich.
2. MISS GEORGIA EMERY, insurance, Detroit, Mich.
3. MISS ANN BAKER, railroad ties, Paducah, Ky.
4. MISS MARY RYAN, paint, Brooklyn, N. Y.
5. MRS. ZELLA A. McBERTY, welding, Warren, O.
6. MRS. MARY STUBBS MOORE, chemicals, Indianapolis, Ind.
7. MRS. N. B. BRAINARD, tug boats, Jacksonville, Fla.
8. MISS CECILE WOODBURY, iron foundry, Great Falls, Mont.
9. MRS. CHARLES N. GOULD, industrial geologist, Oklahoma City, Okla.
10. MISS ALICE ENGELHARDT, shoes, Cincinnati, O.

worked with her husband in the Federal Spot Welder Company of Warren, Ohio, and developed it so that it now is doing more than a million-dollar business a year!

"Sixth in this list is Mrs. Mary Stubbs Moore, president and manager of the Pitman Chemical Company of Indianapolis, Indiana. Quiet in manner, but thorough in work, she developed a field that was exclusively worked by men."

"Down in Jacksonville, Florida, Mrs. N. B. Brainard has been building tug boats for many years. Her boats have become known as the best in the southern waters. Many of her customers say she is a better 'business man' than most men."

"It seems that no work is too hard for a woman to tackle. For Miss Cecile Woodbury is president of an iron foundry in Great Falls, Montana. Despite the handicap imposed upon a woman going into so arduous a work, she succeeded in developing the company so that now it is one of the leading in its field."

"Ninth in the ranking of these business successes is Mrs. Charles N. Gould of Oklahoma City. Her husband was a professor of geology, who could not see much to his calling beyond the academic side. His wife did. She persuaded him to branch out. Together they did, and now their company of industrial geology is kept busy making surveys, reports and money. They have two children, but do not let business interfere with bringing them up."

"Tenth place goes to Miss Alice Engelhardt of Cincinnati, who rose from a $4.00-a-week job as stock girl to be secretary and treasurer of the Pitter Shoe Company."

"If we were listing just another name to the ranking, I would add Mrs. Stella Coleman, of Indianapolis. Left a widow with two children, she went to work for a bank, and soon developed an industrial department that has been an influence on banking throughout the country."

"All these women are pioneers and leaders in the business world, opening up new vistas for women. They are all leaders in their chosen lines, and they succeeded because they were ready to take a chance."

"All of them are middle-aged, between 35 and 45. Their work seems to keep them young."

Entered in Post Office at Clearfield, Pa., as second class mail matter.

It sometimes takes a long time for a contention to be proved. About eight years ago The Progress bucked up against a wall of popular opinion by labeling a certain candidate public office as of "22" calibre.

Now, after that span of years, the majority is with The Progress in its appraisal.

Far be it from us to label any present day candidate as "22" calibre, but in casting about for a good name for that of the Democratic party now in charge of the party machinery, somebody has suggested that in view of their numerical strength it be called the "22 shorts."

Speaking of artillery that so-called independent Commissioner ticket certainly was some "dud." At its inception it sent out a lot of flares and signal lights, gave the order to charge, was assaulted by the "regulars" whom they repulsed and threw back to the street, and then laid down a barrage to cover up the "three grenadiers." As a climax they loaded their Big Berthas with Boyce and McCracken, touched off the fuse and Corporal Joe, Captain Sam and Sergeant Jim are still listening for the "hit."

In a recent issue a contemporary credited the editor of The Progress with being a member of the Republican State Committee and therefore "in on" the doings of the Republican party in this state.

We have no desire to parade under false colors or be adorned with honors not ours so wish to state that we hold no such office and, as for being in on the doings, we know not what the Republican State Committee is doing or what that sanctum looks like, with very little chance of ever eating at the pie counter because they have no rope big enough to tie us.

So far as we can observe the fellow who is in on the "know" is no other than the editor of The Republican, who maintains close relations with the G. O. P. through his son who, he it said to his credit, became a Republican when he left the roof of his father, and today is recognized as one of the leading Republicans of Philadelphia.

It is pretty nice to have things working both ends from the middle and we congratulate brother Short on being able to get the glad hand from either battle front, especially when poor little me is unwelcome at either.

And while at it we might correct another mis-statement. It has been said that A. G. Woodward was a candidate for the Controllership. Not so, Mr. Phila Thompson, to our knowledge, was the only person recommended to the Governor and that recommendation was made by Senator Joseph Clark of Glen Campbell, a friend of the family.

Other misstatements, particularly concerning the convention held here to nominate a successor to Mr. Thompson are, as we said before, "much ado about nothing."

President Coolidge's statement on law enforcement is disappointing only to his natural enemies; those who wished the president to make the same mistake some other luminaries are making in playing to the grandstand.

If you have not carefully read the statement made by Mr. Coolidge to the Governors it most assuredly would be good business to do so before criticizing. It is full of homely truths and philosophy.

Mr. Coolidge retained his dignity and did not presume that his audience was a mere handful of school boys to be scolded and put down, he appealed to the Governors of the several states in with the federal government in the great undertaking.

Mr. Coolidge does not presume to be a great "I am." When many of the big "its" pass into history Mr. Coolidge will still be sitting in the White House and the problem of law enforcement will be nearer solved than it can be by blatant threats.

The following from The Gazette-Times of Pittsburgh is a creditable comment on the problem:

President Coolidge, in his address to the Governors of the states assembled in Washington on his invitation to confer with them on law enforcement, specifically mentioned only three things: a wide violation has become a national menace. The state made a plain, however, that his concern, as it must be the concern of every thorough-going American, is enforcement of all laws. This is the paramount question before the people today. The laws are the people's laws, the President reminded, and they have been enacted for definite and essential purposes: "They have formed their government and enacted their laws, with all due solemnity, to promote their welfare and protect their liberties."

The immigration, anti-narcotic and prohibition statutes are those which, being wisely set at defiance, most seriously threaten the public welfare and the popular liberties. Co-operation of the states with the Federal government is besought of the Governors by President Coolidge and it is not conceivable that it will not be accorded. We may leave the finding of ways and means of securing essential results to the patriotic executives. For the general enlightenment, the President said to the Governors:

"The country ought to comprehend that when laws have been made there is and can be no question about the duty of executives to enforce them with such instruments and by such means as the law provides for securing enforcement. They have no alternative. They cannot be criticized for during their duty. This is not a political question; it cannot be made a political question. If there be any principle which has been established by time, by common consent, by the unqualified assertion of fundamental and statute law, it is that executives are the law-enforcing officers of the nation."

So much for law enforcement. The ideal state would be one in which laws were self-enforcing. Appreciation of the beauties of such a condition will be found in the implications of the words: "Enforcement of law and obedience to law, by the very nature of our institutions, are not matters of choice in this republic, but the expression of a moral requirement of living in accordance with the truth. They are clothed with a spiritual significance in which is revealed the life or the death of the American ideal of self-government."

AMEN!

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D. C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 92 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimony for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. IMA HEWITT, 1829 Penna. Ave. S.E., Washington, D.C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Progress Editorial For Women

THE HUMAN SIDE

By FLORENCE DAVIES
"Nobody had ever told them work could be an adventure," said the woman who had helped to train a hundred "fresh" girls in the club house the other day. "The girls were stealing my leaves from the books in the library, and stub ends of pencils to write notes to each other. Just because they were under such strict silence rules that normal friendly talk was impossible," she explained. "We told them they might talk at recreation hour. After that outdoor communication, such as promiscuous use of the telephone."

Mrs. Mae Stannard, now a representative of a national committee for the care and correction of delinquent girls, knows human nature from the standpoint of superintendent of a industrial home. She told some of her experiences to several of the club women the other day. "The girls were stealing my leaves from the books in the library, and stub ends of pencils to write notes to each other. Just because they were under such strict silence rules that normal friendly talk was impossible," she explained. "We told them they might talk at recreation hour. After that outdoor communication, such as promiscuous use of the telephone."

"When the honor system came in force, an honor girl could wear the color she liked in dress, and instead of the dark blue uniform of the school, I've seen a pink hair ribbon give a little delinquent girl a change of heart that a Bill Sunday sermon couldn't accomplish."

Work—the interesting kind of job—somebody to be friends with, bright colors and clothes one likes. Aren't those some of the things we at must have to make life something more than a treadmill?

The girl who seeks the bright lights is like all the rest of us. "We are apt to thrust her into a gloomy institution, with a scrubbing and that sort of thing. There are no love the night," said Mrs. Stannard. "Our institution is a place where, when we had a bit of July picnic in the grove the girls had helped to clear. They ran and romped and toasted 'weiners' and had away. Not one of them, though it was fully prophesied, broke off to the standard of the understanding heart. With a vision of normal womanhood, she has helped hundreds of thwarted, untrained, rebellious girls to a new view of life in the institution walls and the gospel of kindness and fair dealing which she is now spreading outside will reach to bless others."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Loring Ranger offers a reward of one hundred thousand dollars for the return of his missing daughter, Hope. Acting upon instructions from Hope's abductors, Ranger deposits a hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds at a specified place. Dr. Bristol has a private sanitarium and it is here that Hope is held. Dr. Kelsey is detained here because he knows of criminal dealings of Bristol.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Bristol knows there is a hiding place in the house. I am going to give myself up. Reach my father. Love forever Hope."

Without giving her impulse time to cool, she hurried back to the cupboard and crept into the passage, closing the panel carefully behind her. Kelsey still lay in deep, exhausted sleep. She bent over him, lay close to his head, then drew back, fearing to wake him. Very gently she slipped the note between his relaxed fingers, and then felt her way along the wall until she reached the outer exit.

Outside at last, and no sign that she had attracted any attention. Shielded by two or three out-buildings, and concealed by patches of shrubbery, she reached the gap in the hedge. Passing through it, she made a quick detour to the right to muddy her skirt and shoes in the trickle of a brook, and so at last came to the open space where the wrecked automobile lay.

She heard the men approaching who had been whistled back from the woods and began dodging from tree to tree as if attempting to hide. They saw her as she had intended they should. Two of them caught her. She made a show of struggle, but they held her fast by the arms. In answer to their shouts, Bristol and the others came running through the hedge.

"Ah!" he said with uncanny satisfaction as if a weight had been suddenly removed from his chest. "How to get the other one?" His eyes were like points of steel as he came close to Hope.

"Where's Kelsey?" he demanded. She looked at him vacantly.

"Kelsey," he repeated, "the man you went away with. Where is he?" "That man?" He was under the automobile; there was blood on him.

"Yes, yes. But what became of him?" She leaned toward him with the air of imparting a confidence.

"That man is crazy. He said he wasn't, but I know better. I wanted him to hide in the woods. I know these woods." She passed her hand nervously over her forehead.

"I don't know how I know them, but I wanted him to hide here, but he wouldn't do it. He talked about getting a boat down on the beach, and when I wouldn't go with him he ran away." She waved her hand vaguely toward the shore.

Bristol's eyes bored through her, but she looked beyond him listlessly.

Finally he gave a curt order to have her taken back to the house.

CHAPTER XXI

KELSEY woke up slowly, dragging himself from his long, exhausted sleep and blinked his heavy eyes.

Why, it was daylight!

His whole sleep-togged brain was roused now. Why was the panel open? Ah! There Hope stood in it—no! It was a man.

Then he sprang.

The man in the opening ducked, and raised an arm to shield himself.

"I'm a friend!" he cried, throwing himself against the side of the cupboard.

"Honest, you can believe me. A friend of Ranger's."

Kelsey looked above him, still threatening, but his lowering glance had shifted. What was this he was holding in his clenched hand—that bit of white paper sticking through his fingers, between the spreading knuckles?

Juanes Charlie had dodged; and quick as a cat on his feet, stepped from the cupboard into the room.

Kelsey had unclosed his hand, and was straightening out the paper.

He could see that there was something written on it, but the light was too dim and gray for him to decipher it. He was in the room and at the window in two strides.

Here he read Hope's message. The rain was dashing against the window.

Two of them caught her.

down paces, the wind whistling about the house.

The uprushing blood darkened his face. He whirled savagely, and caught Charlie by the shoulder, shaking him hard.

"Who are you? One of their men? Did you help take her?"

"I did not," Charlie wriggled like an eel from that biting grasp and stood rubbing his shoulder. "I'm one of Ranger's men, Juanes Charlie. Do you get that?"

He swaggered, his head at its most impudent angle.

"I've been wandering about with one of a picture-puzzle, trying to piece the rest out of the air. And you've got the other two-thirds. They know that I'm on their trail, and that I've been in Barcelona. They think you're drowned."

"Drowned? Me?" Kelsey repeated. "In heaven's name, why?"

"She told them you'd made for the shore, and a boat. Then, that terrible storm. Lord! Did you sleep through that?"

"I seem to have slept through everything, but my own special judgment, I'm going through that now."

"But still," Charlie continued, "there's always the chance of your being alive and at large. So, everything considered, they've got a new situation before them, something they haven't foreseen."

"But my God; if you're what you say you are, one of Ranger's men, all you have to do is to go out now and telephone him and the authorities."

"Oh, is it?" Charlie retorted with acid sarcasm. "This thing isn't quite as simple as it sounds. You start out to telephone, and you'll be nabbed sure."

Half-convinced, Kelsey gave way ungraciously.

"What sort of a place is this sanitarium?" The brusque tang of the question gave Kelsey the feeling that Charlie was really heading somewhere, and aroused him from his melancholy abstraction.

"Bristol's?" He looked up. "One of the best in the country. Only for the very rich of course; thoroughly modern, splendidly managed. Bristol is an alienist of the first rank, with a criminal twist and a crane for money."

"What were you doing there?" Kelsey told him briefly of his position as assistant-surgeon, and the circumstances of his detention; just his first experience with Hope and of the role she was playing; of their subsequent meetings and the escape.

Charlie's cigar burned to ashes in his fingers, and his face sharpened down until it was wolfish; but he did not once interrupt the story, or ask a question.

"Bristol?" He held up one of his lightning-rolled cigarettes, naming it. "But," he quipped thoughtfully, as he laid it on the table, "he couldn't swing it along. Too big. Who else is in it?"

He shot the question at Kelsey like a bullet from a rapid-fire revolver.

"Miss Copley. She's a nurse. Looks strikingly like Hope. Passes as an older sister in charge of the insane young ones."

Charlie pursed his mouth to a whistle.

"Any one else?"

"Higgins. An ex-Alderman. An old millionaire. Made a fortune in Wall Street, they say."

Charlie blundered up with a stifled exclamation, his tongue clicking his teeth.

"Hobbs! But that does settle it. Hobbs! I might have known it. Hobbs—The Joker in the deck!"

He bobbed about the room like cork, snapping his fingers, muttering broken phrases under his breath.

"The hobo message!—This booby-hatch for a head-quarters!—The nurse, a ringer!—I've got the whole thing!"

CHAPTER XXII

"IN the first place," said Charlie, "I've known Ranger ever since I was a boy, and when I heard about his little girl, I started out on my own to find her. I know crook psychology better than old Byrnes ever did; but this gang that are holding her fooled me forty ways from the arc. But last night I got a tip that led straight to Bristol's Sanitarium."

"I rode as fast as my motor-cycle could race from Westchester to Barcelona, taking all the short cuts. It was on one of them that I came on you two. And so I rushed for a doctor, thinking you were ready to kick me, and as soon as I reached the village, I got pinched. So I just turned in and went to sleep; that is, as much as that fierce storm would let me."

"But in the meantime, my mascot had got busy. She it was that misled the lead to Bristol. I'd had dinner with her, and put her back in a bus with her party. They all went on to spend the evening with some friends, and as they came back about midnight, they stopped at the Low Hill garage for some gas. Up steps the garage man's assistant, a shock-headed lunk, that had driven me and my queen to the Inn. He was all twittering with excitement, and tells her that I've been arrested over here at Barcelona."

"What a headpiece that girl's got. Here's her friends kind of giggling at her for being took in. But I don't believe that; for she saw me with Ranger. And Barcelona is the tip she gave me. But she wants to make sure. So what does she do but call up the man whose name's been in all the papers as Ranger's attorney, Eustace Higby."

"He tells her that I'm all right, and then he routs out Frank Bryan, Ranger's private secretary, and shows him down here on the morning train to get me out."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

One day an old Kurdish chief, with a heavily armed escort, rode into the grounds of the British legation in Teheran, Persia. He had a little grandson with him, a richly dressed boy of about nine who, in addition to a dagger and sword, had a couple of the most up-to-date revolvers stuck in his belt. The old chief wanted to send his grandson to Harrow school in England. The matter was discussed through an interpreter, and after countless complaints and expressions of thanks, the old-looking horseman with the old chief and the boy at his head, rode away.

Still it has not acquired even yet any of the characteristics of the true diving birds. Its feet are an webbed, it is still a thrush.

VEGETABLE TEA FOR CONSTIPATION

Thousands of Families Brew It at Home and Keep Well.

Sick headache, nervousness, sallow skin and drowsiness are nearly always caused by constipation and can easily be conquered by the use of Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea.

Brew it at home the same as you would the regular mealtime tea and drink a cupful just before you go to bed.

A 30-cent package will last a long time and any druggist will tell you that he has been selling it for years and that many people swear by it. Drink it for inactive liver and clogged up bowels. You'll like it. Being purely vegetable and gentle in action it is fine for children and nearly all of them like it.

"LOOK BABY," SAYS BABY WITH GUN; PARENT SHOT

Lykens, Pa., Oct. 22.—"Look Daddy!" said the three-year-old son of Joseph Umholtz of Gratz, while Umholtz, his wife and the little boy were in a clothing store here this evening.

Umholtz looked, and saw the child holding a shiny revolver which had attracted the little fellow's attention when the toddler behind the counter found the gun beside the cash register. As the frightened father lurched forward to snatch the weapon from the boy's hands the child pulled the trigger. The bullet left a slight flesh wound on the father's head.

If She Tries to. Life is never riskier to the woman who can afford to keep her. —Boston Transcript

Do you take orders from a Coffee Pot?

It must be humiliating for thousands of people to confess that they lack the will-power to stop coffee.

They know from experience that it results in irritated nerves; keeps them awake nights; makes them nervous. Yet they don't seem to be able to say "no."

If you find that coffee harms you, change to the pure cereal beverage, Postum. You'll find it delicious and satisfying. And it is absolutely free from caffeine or any other harmful drug, so you can drink Postum at any meal, and as much as you want.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.
